	Rinus Van de Velde	“The day I decided to leave my studio for good...” The day I decided to leave my studio for good I made it extra dirty and left an almost finished canvas on the easel. Soon this cave where I had spent so many days of my past life in solitude would be visited by huge numbers of tourists how would come and look at it from behind a glass plate used for protection.	2018	Charcoal on canvas, artist's frame	220 x 260
	Rinus Van de Velde	“What still rested me to do in the meantime...” What still rested me to do in the meantime was to dictate my past life to the recording device. Once done I would hand the hundreds of tapes over to somebody who would then just have to transcribe it all without adding or leaving something out, publish it and add the title on the cover under my name: A life, the autobiography.	2018	Charcoal on canvas, artist frame	220 x 260
